Before the exciting advent of XM radio when traveling it was all but impossible to get weather forecasts on the radio. If you were lucky enough to pick one up you had no idea where the station originated since location never seems to be mentioned when a station gives its call letters. I have had the experience of traveling in my motorhome home and coming in to nasty weather. But trying to get a weather forecast for the area was impossible. It can be scary. I think weather news on XM will be a blessing when traveling.
